Neurodiversity in the Workplace 2000-04-11 offering original analysis of the convergence between sacred and secular in medieval works of art and architecture this collection explores both the usefulness and limitations of these terms for describing medieval attitudes the modern concepts of sacred and secular are shown to be effective as scholarly tools but also to risk imposing false dichotomies the authors consider medieval material culture from a broad perspective addressing works of art and architecture from england to japan and from the seventh to the fifteenth century although the essays take a variety of methodological approaches they are unified in their emphasis on the continuing and necessary dialectic between sacred and secular the contributors consciously frame their interpretations in terms and perspectives derived from the middle ages thereby demonstrating how the present art historical terminology and conceptual frameworks can obscure the complexity of medieval life and material culture the resonance among essays opens possibilities for productive cross cultural study of an issue that is relevant to a diversity of cultures and sub periods introducing an innovative approach to the literature of the field this volume complicates and enriches our understanding of social realities across a broad spectrum of medieval worlds

Evidence-Based Body Contouring Surgery and VTE Prevention 2019-10-11 we explore the capability of digital large angle convergent beam electron diffraction d laced data for the structural refinement of single crystals to achieve this we use three materials as test cases we use corundum for atomic position refinement copper and gallium arsenide for debye waller factor dwf refinement d laced patterns are found to be extremely sensitive to atomic position within 0.4 pm of reference x ray values the patterns are less sensitive to dwf using the independent atom model iam but nonetheless give good agreement to x ray and mossbauer radiation values for copper we find the iam to be insufficient for accurate refinement of gallium arsenide due to the influence of previously suggested strong anharmonicity and bonding within the material finally we use simulation to explore the sensitivity of d laced patterns through most refineable structural parameters providing context to the aforementioned results during the analysis we see that higher g vector patterns within the d laced data may be more sensitive to structural parameters in general

The Ethnography of Tourism 2021-08-25 global environmental change is one of the most pressing international issues of the next century there is a need to monitor the earth's vital signs from atmospheric ozone to tropical deforestation to sea level change models used to predict global changes have not yet fully used global observational data sets satellite data sets will be vital in addressing global change issues in determining natural variability and monitoring global and regional changes this timely volume provides an illustration of the variety of satellite derived global data sets now available their uses advantages and limitations and the range of variation that has already been observed with these data a team of distinguished contributors provide a highly illustrated and accessible account suitable for the general scientific reader
