Helping Children Cope with Separation and Loss - Revised Edition 1994-04-01 a compassionate step by step guide to help children cope with and recover from any kind of loss

Life and Loss 2013-11-20 many clinicians recognize that denying or ignoring grief issues in children leaves them feeling alone and that acknowledging loss is crucial part of a child s healthy development really dealing with loss in productive ways however is sometimes easier said than done for decades life and loss has been the book clinicians have relied on for a full and nuanced presentation of the many issues with which grieving children grapple as well as an honest exploration of the interrelationship between unresolved grief educational success and responsible citizenry the third edition of life and loss brings this exploration firmly into the twenty first century and makes a convincing case that children s grief is no longer restricted only to loss identified children children s grief is now endemic it is global life and loss is not just the book clinicians need to understand grief in the twenty first century it s the book they need to work with it in constructive ways

What Remains 2017-04-09 a funny poignant and at times heartbreaking memoir about one mother and her love of beautiful objets and how it ultimately proved destructive being left with a strand of even the highest quality milky white pearls isn t quite the same thing as pearls of wisdom to live by as karen von hahn reveals in her memoir about her stylish and captivating mother susan a mercurial grandiose guerlain and vodka soaked narcissist whose search for glamour and fulfillment through the acquisition and collection of beautiful things ultimately proved hollow a tale of growing up in 1970s and 1980s toronto in the fabulousness of a bourgeois jew ish family that valued panache over pragmatism and making a design statement over substance von hahn s recollections of her dramatic and domineering mother are exemplified by the objects she held most dear from a strand of prized pearls to a venetian mirror worthy of the palace of versailles to the silver satin sofas that were the epitome of her signature style she also describes the misunderstandings and sometimes hurt and pain that come with being raised by her stunning larger than life mother who in many ways embodied the flash and glam high flying wealth accumulating generation that gave birth to our modern day material culture alternating between satire and sadness von hahn reconstructs the past through a series of exquisitely impressionistic memories ultimately questioning the value of the things we hold dear and after her complicated yet impossible to forget mother is gone what exactly remains

Love Loss Light 2019-05-08 it s a day like any other except it s not for on this day karen gets the call that her beloved charlie her partner in work and life is dead suddenly she is a widow so prostrate with grief that she can barely stand let alone move forward yet karen is determined to get up because somewhere inside is a spark that tells her she is not alone a knowing that god or universe or whatever we think of as the presence that is greater than ourselves is there somewhere waiting for her to open the door and enter that welcoming light and so begins karen s journey through grief and loss and into the light of what she thought she would never again know joy each chapter tells the story of a blessing that reveals itself within the darkest depths of karen s grief from little acts of self nurturing to creating a place of refuge from willing inner strength into existence to understanding that being knocked down does not negate the other steps forward from facing down the expectations of others to allowing herself to love again karen s story is a series of guideposts for every person s individual journey through grief

Loss, Hurt and Hope 2009-03-26 what happens when a child experiences bereavement or trauma or both when left untreated childhood trauma crosses generational boundaries developing risk factors that far outpace the threat of any other childhood disease and yet most children who have lived through a significant traumatic experience usually do not get the care they need to begin their healing process children who have experienced trauma are often left grappling with devastating loss loss of self esteem security innocence and trust that is more challenging to diagnose and treat than the more concrete loss of family a pet or a home loss hurt and hope the complex issues of religious and cultural boundaries what happens to our dreams in the face of danger and disillusionment and when dreams diverge when one spouse can no longer continue on a certain path what path do we choose

Disaster Losses Kit 1999 explaining the concept of death to a child is a very difficult confusing and uncomfortable experience for a parent educator or therapist and it is a topic that is often first introduced by the loss of a pet sometimes a child's earliest exposure to loss and grief there is an undeniably special bond that develops between people and their pets especially between animals and young children and while the death of a pet can be devastating to an adult children are often deeply affected by such a loss without readily available outlets for their feelings the trauma of pet loss can remain with a child for life and without help many adults feel inadequate and not up to the task the aim of this book is to provide therapists counselors educators parents social workers veterinarians and physicians with resources to help children cope with the loss of a pet

Pet Loss and Children 2013-05-13 all people suffer instances of personal loss that cause distress all too often their discomfort is treated as a medical issue requiring treatment usually through medication melvyn I fein argues for a broader understanding of loss and losing that offers another approach which he characterizes as resocialization indeed how a person thinks feels and acts may all need to be reorganized if personal distress is to be overcome fein urges that we distinguish between the loss of something we once possessed and losing something that never came to fruition thus it is possible never to achieve vital social roles social statuses and or personal bonds despite our individual efforts while some of these losses are not necessarily problematic others are extremely painful unfortunately rather than investigate the source of this discomfort distraught individuals frequently seek refuge in simplistic solutions as a consequence one of the reasons the medical model remains dominant is that the alternative is imperfectly understood fein presents a compelling case for a sociological interpretation of personal distress although he acknowledges that some personal suffering derives from biological sources and that mental illnesses can spill over to cause social dysfunctions he argues that it is important to recognize the social causes of human suffering in thereby recognizing the limitations of the human condition most of us can do better than blindly accept an inherited dedication to the medical model on loss and losing offers a legitimate option without denying the reality of human suffering

On Loss and Losing 2017-09-08 with memories of loss and dreams of perfection delmont and shirley morrison have made an impressive contribution to psychology and to the appreciation of literature by demonstrating the ways in which a children's imaginative play can help them cope with the tragic early loss of beloved family members and by tracing how such early play processes form the basis for adult creativity their book is unique in that it presents new ideas and expands our understanding of the complex interrelationships among loss child development and creativity and presents clinical cases of play therapy and case studies of creative adults to illustrate theory and concepts the morrison's incorporate scientific research clinical case studies and biographies in a manner that provides a deeper understanding of the fiction of emily bronte j m barrie jack kerouac and isak dinesen readers will be deeply touched and moved to self exploration by the humanity and sensitivity of this fine book
